

Dr. Christopher Sarin, MD

Dr. Chris Sarin is a Public Health and Preventive Medicine Specialist (University of Calgary 2005) and Family Physician (University of Calgary 2003). He is the Senior Medical Officer of Health for First Nations and Inuit Health Branch, Indigenous Services Canada, Alberta Region. In that role he supports the on reserve public health programs including Immunization, Communicable Disease Control, and Surveillance. He worked closely with health partners and First Nations throughout the Covid 19 emergency. He works with many First Nations communities and ISC programs to address health priorities, including the Fentanyl/Opioid Crisis, Mental wellness, Chronic Diseases, and Environmental Health.